FRIDAY
GOOD POSITION REQUESTED ..

DANTE ORDERED TO GIVE ACCOUNTING

Trustee of Stilson Hutchins Estate Must Submit Record to Court and Fire Bond For $125,000.

Out of the tangled litigation over Stilson Hutchins' millions Chief Justice Claiborne, in Equity Court No. 1, today evolved a semblance of order and directed that William J. Dante, trustee of the $3,500,000 estate, give an accounting from the date of the trust, March 7, 1910, and file a corporate bond of $125,000.

The Chief Justice also made the declaration that all bills for which the Hutchins estate is liable, should be paid without unnecessary delay, a contention urged by Mrs. Rose Keeling Hutchins, wife of the millionaire, who appears as plaintiff in several suits. To this end, the court directed that all the obligations pressed by Mrs. Hutchins be presented to Nathaniel Wilson, guardian ad litem for Mr. Hutchins for recommendation.

One of Mrs. Hutchins' contentions has been that bills contracted by her while in Paris should be paid out of the estate and not from her allowance, which recently was increased from $1,000 to $2,000 a week.

Wants Suits Combined.
Mr. Wilson, as guardian for Mr. Hutchins, urged that the several suits be combined and that an amicable agreement be reached. He informed the court that on the advice of attending physicians he had been unable to communicate with his millionaire ward, but thought that the litigation could be simplified by dismissing some of the suits.

Corporation Counsel E. H. Thomas appeared in behalf of Walter Stilson Hutchins and objected to the payment of bills presented by Mrs. Rose Keeling Hutchins until they had been audited. He declared that the object of the suit's appearance in the suit was "to protect his father's name," whereas the whole object of Mrs. Hutchins' suits is money." He also asserted that Walter Stilson Hutchins "did not purpose to have his father's estate looted."

"Any sum for the comfort of Stilson Hutchins, the father, but not a cent till the accounts are given by Mrs. Hutchins," stated Mr. Thomas.

Mr. Thomas agreed that Trustee Dante be required to give an accounting and furnish a proper bond, and he declared the court's final order "is a fair proposition."

Mrs. Hutchins' Allegation.
Considerable stress was placed by Mr. Thomas on the allegation of Mrs. Hutchins that her husband is of unsound mind. He said that the same were particularly anxious to have "their father's name, and avoid so much publicity and notoriety."

The court action today was on the petition of Trustee Dante, filed through Attorneys Brandenburg & Brandenburg, asking that he be permitted to give bond and file an accounting with the court.

The court then explained that it was altogether proper that Mrs. Hutchins should demand an accounting and a bond by the trustee.

"If Mr. Hutchins' estate is liable for the bills, the question there should be paid without delay," said the Chief Justice.

Ten days were allowed Trustee Dante to file his accounting. There was some dispute relative to the date from which the accounting should be paid, but Attorneys Gittings and Chamberlain, representing Mrs. Hutchins, declared she was entitled to an accounting from March 7, 1910, when the deed was executed.

The bills urged for payment by Mrs. Hutchins include accounts from Parisian modistes, physicians, livermen, and others.

BOARD NAMED TO DETERMINE CAUSE OF MAINE WRECK

Joint Army and Navy Body of Experts to Begin Final Inquiry.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer today announced the appointment of a joint army and navy board with orders to go to Havana, examine the wreck of the battleship Maine and find out if practically what it was that caused the explosion.

As the Secretary himself put it "This board has instructions to find out everything."

"Does that mean that these officers are to report on the cause of the wreck, whatever they might be?" Mr. Meyer was asked.

"It means they are to get all the facts. The wreck has now been raised, and they will have an opportunity to see things never before seen by such a board," was the reply.

That the Navy Department means to get at the bottom of the causes for this wreck, whatever those causes may be, is indicated by the personnel of the commission.

For instance, Rear Admiral Charles E. Vreeland, now aide for inspections, has been named to head the board. Serving with him will be R. M. Watt chief constructor of the navy; Col. William H. Clegg, president of the army board charged with raising the Maine; Commander Joseph Strauss, power expert of the navy, and Commander Charles Hughes, recorder of the board of inspection of ships.

This board is composed of experts and if the secret of the explosion can be learned, the Navy Department believes this body of officers will learn it.

Secretary Meyer said today that the members of the board, excepting Colonel Black, will leave for Havana in a day or two and will arrive there next week. They will remain there until they satisfy themselves that all the facts possible to be ascertained are in their possession. Colonel Black is there already.

The board is named at this time not only because the entire wreck is now visible but also because the army engineers are ready to begin cutting it up for removal and the administration wants to have this final report on the explosion while the vessel is intact.

Passes Bad Checks But Gets Parole
Guilty of passing a worthless check for $15 on Fred & Brockway, a parole was granted to W. G. Mitchell in United States branch of Police Court today. The complaining witnesses requested that Mitchell be shown to Mitchell and he was placed on probation for a year. If he behaves he will not be sentenced for the offense.

Yes, We'll Civilize the Indians.

(The Bureau of Indian Affairs has decided that the Indian dances which the "Original Americans" have given for centuries, must go, as they are immoral, have a wrong effect on the tribes, and consume too much valuable time, both of the dancers and of the observers.)

Yes, we'll civilize the Indians, we shall take them unawares, and our terpsichorean ideas in the future shall be theirs. Make them see the thought artistic—their is years behind the time, They are jogging ancient two-steps, brought from equatorial clime.

We have dances, but they're as different as the night is from the day, We don't cover up our bodies with herby juice and paint of clay; Ours is art; unlike the Indian dance which caused this great complaint; We restore Hellenic customs (and we use not even paint).

Now, for instance, there's St. Denis, the Duncans, Fullers, and Genees, Modest women flock to see them, Godly men rush to their plays. But they're different, as was stated; Indians have such beastly shapes, Full and coarse as nature made them—built like cows, the jackanapes.

Yes, we'll take away their dances, make of them a Christian lot, What's the use of all the prances, walks and wiggles, glides and trots? They can't show a "Little Egypt," with her grace and perfect form, And, with Oriental music, muscle by with cheers of storm.

They know nothing of our Thais, Ann Pavlowa, or Mordkin, Nor for glides and moony two-steps, blatant airs, orchestra's din. See St. Denis tripping lightly, wreathed in smiles, urged on by cheers, Float for hours behind the footlights, bringing back Egyptian years.

True it is, her dress is flimsy, 'twas designed by one who knows, But the horrid Indian woman, doesn't even wear a rose. Then again there is this difference, 'tween the old race and the new; Indian tastes are so piebald—dancing ideas all askew?

They give vent to their own feeling, in the daylight for the fun, Never think to commercialize it; don't consider at all the mon'. Shades of Klaw and Henry Savage, that is a peculiar state, Ad. Genee can price each wiggle, got it doped out on her slate.

But it's art behind her dances (art is such a funny thing), Art's all right when money coffers fill with shiny coins that ring. Probably if Lo's poor woman, would put on a gauzy shirt, Thus leave more for the imagination, our feelings would not be hurt.

Yes, we'll civilize the Indians, make of them a decent lot, Teach them all our ways of living, singing, dancing, and what not? Make of them a modern nation, and Poor Lo should take the hunch, That we'll Christianize his fellows, if we have to kill the bunch.

Mrs. Marshall to Be Buried From Son's Home

Funeral services for Mrs. Ruth Ann Marshall, widow of Philip S. Marshall, who died at the home of her son, Thomas R. Marshall, 1819 Columbia road, yesterday, at the age of ninety-two years, will be held at the home tomorrow at 10 o'clock. Interment will be in Rock Creek cemetery.

Born in Baltimore, Mrs. Marshall was a member of the Methodist Church all her life, and was a regular attendant of the old Foundry Methodist Church, before its destruction several years ago. Her father was Thomas Rusk, well known in this politics in Maryland nearly a century ago. As a girl she attended the famous "Hannah Moore" schoolhouse in Baltimore.

Enlistments Increase.

CAPT. MARKHAM MAY LEAVE DISTRICT ON BECOMING A MAJOR

Popular Officer Takes Examination for Promotion November 29.

Following his elevation to the rank of major, Capt. E. M. Markham, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, is understood, will be relieved of his duties in the District and transferred to another post. Captain Markham will go to New York November 29 to take the examination for his promotion.

As yet Captain Markham has received no intimation from the officials of the War Department concerning the transfer. It is known, however, that orders detailing him to other duties would not come to him as a surprise.

Captain was appointed Assistant Engineer Commissioner July 17, 1907. Four years in the District service is the usual assignment given to any army officer, and Captain Markham has served more than that time.

Captain Markham's present duties place him in charge of the sewer and Water Departments, and all details of underground construction. Prior to this he had supervision of the highways department, and is familiar with all the engineering projects in the District.

Captain Markham's ability as an engineer is widely recognized. Recently he was employed by the city of Jacksonville, Fla., as consulting engineer, and numerous other offers for his services have been made.
